Q: Common ListView items in Visualforce page I want to create a tabular report like this in visualforce page. I mean, if I have a list of records (eg. an Account object), I want the list to be displayed in a tabular format. I don't want to create a new page. I know how to create a similar report for each page. But, as I am working on a salesforce project that will have many visualforce pages, I want to simplify the process by creating a list of reports, that will be rendered in a tabular format. Let me explain it using this piece of code public class List_Test{ public list list_string {get;set;} public List_Test(){ list_string = new list(); list_string.add('honda'); list_string.add('mazda'); list_string.add('toyota'); // this list is pre-populated with data } }

Now, if I want to create a report that will show the name of the listed object, I know I can do this using the following code. This will print out, for instance, the following honda mazda toyota This doesn't help me much, as the code above doesn't give me any options to add different types of reports to different pages. I need to create a report. It should be something like this. honda mazda toyota I know I can easily use Visualforce and a static resource for this. But, that's not what I want. The idea is to
